

The Importance of Environmental Law in terms of the Protected Jural Profits

Ilhami Güneş<sup>1*</sup>, Nilgün Yenil<sup>2</sup>, Bahriye Gülgün<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Judge at IP Civil Law Court, Izmir Courthouse, Adalet neighborhood, Bayraklı, Izmir -Turkey; <sup>2</sup>Celal Bayar University, Sciences and Arts Faculty, Department of Chemistry, Muradiye, Manisa-Turkey; <sup>3</sup>Ege University, Agriculture Faculty, Department of Landscape Architecture, Izmir-Turkey

Received December 12, 2014; Accepted March 02, 2015

Abstract: It needs more than one discipline to evaluate the results. Since we need the environment for our existence, we need a sustainable progress of developing with no harming to environment or minimal damage must be done which can also be undone. The aim of the environmental law is to protect the nature which is the source of common existence, how to improve it, protection of the natural resources and the lands in urban and countryside, prevention of soil and air pollution and the protection of the plant and animal existence of the country. In order to have convenient and drastic solutions one should evaluate the nature concept and the meaning loaded to it, the content of it and by perceiving the problems in essential reason-result relation. Environmental Law; is an original discipline area that is different from all of the other branches of law. So, one should examine the environmental law different from the other traditional approaches. However, ‘what will be’ generally does not cover ‘what should it be’ and environmental problems are researched with traditional approaches but this is not a right thing to do. It should be remembered that the environment laws related to the ecology’s basic rules ought to be in the legal systems of the countries. In scientific fields; the researchers must be educated to consider the eco-system as a whole. Scientists must pay attention not to destroy the environment while studying and working for the advantage of human beings. They should be supervised by law.

Keywords: Environmental law, ecology, jural sanctions.

---

* Corresponding: E-Mail: ilhamigunes@yahoo.com; Tel: 00905057414080